

About Jennifer

Jenn KISH is a popular southern blogger, motivational speaker, and writer experienced in developing non-fiction narratives for a variety of publications. Her work appears in national and international online venues such as Today Parents, Today Show, Her View From Home, Mothership, and Love What Matters. Jenn influences others through writing, motivational speaking and live video. She communicates with tenderness, compassion and humor from real-life experiences all while challenging her audience to do hard things. Encouraging men and women of all backgrounds to conquer their fears and overcome challenges in both their personal and professional life is a core theme of Jenn's work. She is currently working toward the thrill of holding her published book in hand, but until then you can join the thousands that follow her popular blog, Sprinkles in My Closet on Facebook.

