Ginger Hughes writes from her home in the foothills of North Carolina which she shares with her husband and two children. As a minister's wife, mother, and one familiar with heartache, she uses words to extend a hand of friendship, solidarity, and encouragement to women looking for hope and a reminder of God's amazing love. Ginger is a Bible study leader and the author of the blog, No Mama's Perfect. It's her deepest desire to walk with God daily and to help others do the same.
